CEMA Returns to Normal Operations (OPCON 5)

Chatham County, GA (September 15, 2018) –Chatham Emergency Management Agency (CEMA) has demobilize the Emergency Operation Center and returned to Operating Condition (OPCON) 5 which is considered normal operations during hurricane season.

The threat from Hurricane Florence has significantly decreased for Chatham County which warrants the return to normal operations.

“This is the third year in a row where our community has had to prepare for a hurricane” said CEMA Director Dennis Jones. “Year round, we encourage individuals and families to be prepared. The first actions in being prepared are to put together a disaster kit and develop an emergency and family communications plan.”

Businesses are also encouraged to be prepared by developing a Business Continuity Plan.
